STATEMENT ABOUT THE COURSE

Law, Politics, and Regulatory Policy is rooted in administrative law. Administrative law is one of the fastest growing areas in the public administration discipline, as well as in the field of law. The chief reason for this is simple. More experts in administrative law are needed to help various public and private organizations cope successfully with the mounting problems caused by the rapid growth of governmental regulatory policies over the past few decades. Administrative law is not an easy subject, mostly because it is a relatively new, unstable legal area undergoing rapid change , although the pace has slowed in recent years. Basically, administrative law deals with the legal relationships between regulatory agencies and those they attempt to regulate. Judicial review of agency actions is a particular focus of administrative law since the courts often must decide whether governmental agencies have acted properly when flexing their regulatory muscle. A major focus of administratib1 bscle.

Classes will be held on Monday afternoon from 4:15 7:00 PM, August 28 - Dec 4, 2023

Seminar Outline (Dates)

Topics
although I do plan to present, taking time to explain some chapter content, and answer questions you may have about this difficult subject area. After the first week or two, usually two students will be assigned to present/summarize, and pose questions for the chapter to be covered that week. I will add insights and present questions as well. Note below under Grading Policy that participation counts 20\% of your course grade. This constitutes a significant percentage of your grade, but participation in seminar discussions is very important and demonstrates to me whether you have read and know the material reasonably well. Part of your participation grade will include your summary and questions pertaining to a chapter you will are be assigned. You will be graded on your participation, oral presentation of your seminar paper, your seminar paper, and your final exam.
